“ Hey ya Freddie Wildman - just spoke with Athena today and learned of your passing. I'm speechless. I had called to tell you of Chili Dogs passing away Tuesday so this week is of major sadness. The good thing is you can talk your marvelous sh_t and not have trouble breathing while giving it your all. You and your family will always be in my thoughts and with your permission, I'll call Athena periodically and check on her . . . with your permission hell . . . will always maintain our sick sort of humor and may you rest in peace my friend. You will be sorely missed by more people than you know !!

I forgot, now you can finally beat my motor-cicle . . . RIP Freddie

Love and Respect, SYLB

“ Athena,

Although we lost contact when you guys moved to Crystal Falls, the friendship still endured. You truly were the "apple of his eye" and I know he loved you deeply. Sitting on the porch in National Mine or your kitchen in Ishpeming - are just small snippets of the memories I'll keep forever. Fred was one of those rare individuals we meet during our journey in life who holds a special place in our heart - and made me a better person for knowing him. May our God give you strength and soothe your pain as each day passes.

“ Freddie, I learned from you that forgiving is possible. That it makes us better people when we can truly open our hearts and it feels better to look forward with a smile than behind us with a frown. Remembering the days at Beverly's, riding the heck out of our Harleys, cold Budweiser and joking with Rooster, hanging out with Randy and my late husband Wayne. The 'safety meetings' and people watching:)

You were such a giver, with a heart the size of Texas.and your fried bologna sandwiches were the best. I will truly miss you my friend. Thank you for bringing Athena into my life, your goddess. To see you so in Love and happy gave me great joy! I will be her forever friend, that's a promise!

Sending Texas size Love to you in heaven. Ride with the angels - rubber side down and save us a spot up there !

Until we meet again..... Mariah
