“ Condolences! Char was a delightful Christian Believer and easy to talk with. Sometimes we walked to the Library together in the Winter, she wore snow pants to keep warm.

“ I just heard about Char's passing tonight. I'm so sorry that she's now gone. From the sounds of it she was sick, so I am glad she is no longer sick. When I was dating her son Cori for 5 years, We had really awesome long talks. She was so fun to talk to and had such a wide variety of things she was interested in. Rest in peace Char.. .

Thank you. She battled multiple myeloma for 2.5 years. I take comfort in knowing she is no longer in pain and is with the lord. I'm glad you had a connection with her

“ Mom,
I truly hope you are at peace and have found it. I will do my best to look back on the good memories that I have. I hope to see you again someday. I wish things were different in recent times, can't change any of it, so thank you for everything, I truly do love you and will miss you. See you on the other side....
Give my regards to everybody...

“ I saw Char in the hospital early this summer. I hadnt known her health situation until then. I was saddened to hear all she was going thru. We talked for a bit and planned to get in touch. I had a big surgery coming up and was distracted by that. We never got a chance to reconnect. Im so sorry...
I hope you didnt feel alone Char. I wish peace for you and for my guilt of not getting in touch. ❤️❤️❤️

She was not alone. I'm her niece who was very close with her. She met the lord with her friend and pastor by her side. God listened to my prayers that she would not be alone when she passed. I'll forever be in debt to those who cared for her in her final days

“ When Char first attended Lakeview Bible Church many years ago, we shared many things in common in addition to our desire to better know the Word of God; I knew her former mother-in-law and had also been divorced for many years after having only one child; we both lived alone, trying to keep up our homes and yards; I was a foster parent of teens and she'd been in foster care as a teen; and we both loved watching the historical drama series on PBS on Sunday nights, and would fill each other in on what we missed.

We got to know each other better at our church's ladies' bible study and prayer meetings; during basket-making classes and meals at the local senior center and restaurants; during trips to her doctors and stores; and through many hours of telephone conversations. She especially enjoyed our meals on my deck and playing her make-a-word games, afterwards.

I was in the next hospital room with a friend who was also awaiting back surgery, when Char told me of her incurable cancer. After that surgery, Char tried to keep up her regular activities and hope for a prolonged life, but God had other plans for her. I hope to see her in heaven someday, where we can watch our Lord, Jesus Christ.
